Pleasure and Pain.

Laugh, and the world laughe with you, Weep, and you weep alone, For this brave old earth must borrow its mirth It has troubles enough of its own. Sing and the hills will answer, Sigh! it is lest on the air; The echoes bound to a joyful sound, But shrink from votcing care.

Rejoice and men will seek you Grieve, and they turn and go; They want full measure of all your pleasure, But they do not want your woe, Be glad and your friends are many, Be and and you lose them all: There are none to decline your nectar'd wine, But alone you must drink life's gall.

Feast, and your balls are crowded; Fast, and the world goes by; second and give and is helps you live, But no man can help you die. There is room in the halls of pleasure For a long and a lordly train. But one by one we must all file on Through the narrow sisles of pain.

lived. Deal gently with the cranks my boy. Of course some cranks are crankier than others, but do you be very slow to sneer at a man because he knows only one thing and you can't understand him. A crank, Telemachus, is a thing that turns something, it makes the wheels go round, it insures progress. True, it turns the same wheel all the time, and it can't do anything else, but that's what keeps the ship going ahead. The thing that goes in for variety, versatility, that changes its position a hundred times a day, that is not crank; that is the weather-vane, my son. What? You nevertheless thank heaven you are not a crank? Don't do that my son. Maybe you couldn't be a crank, if you would.
